

HUS 211 : Introduction: Alcohol and Drug Prevention and Abuse

This course is an introduction to the factors involved in the prevention, use, and abuse of alcohol and drugs. Emphasis is on a basic orientation to the field of alcohol and drug education and treatment. Upon completion of this course, the student will be aware of the importance of the historical, physiological, sociological, psychological and economic factors involved in substance abuse.

Program

Human Services

Hours 3

Theory Hours 3

Prerequisites

Admission to Human Services Program and permission of instructor