

HUS 101 : Introduction to Human Services

This course provides an introduction to human services and related theories and systems. Emphasis is placed on the roles and functions within the existing human services organizations by utilizing service learning or field trips to the different organizations, and guest lecturers representing different human service occupations. Upon completion of this course, students should be familiar with the many agencies and institutions which deliver human services and the components of their delivery systems.

Program

Human Services

Hours 3

Theory Hours 3

Prerequisites

Admission to Human Services Program and permission of instructor